Dec. 11, 2009 - PRLog -- How does a lifetimes supply of free electricity sound? Let's face it if it were a competition you would probably enter to win such a valuable prize. Well, its better than a competition because if you have the time and desire then building your own magnetic energy generator is a great way to generate free electricity for life.

These compact generators are cheap to build, they can be made by anyone with little or even no DIY experience and using only a very basic set of tools. What's best is that you can build a magnetic generator that can provide up to 50% of the average households electricity requirements for a little under $200. Build two of them and you could be totally self sufficient in terms of electrical power - now that's got to be worth $400 of anyone's money!

Another major advantage of a magnetic power generator is that it doesn't rely on wind, sun or any other kind of weather to drive it. This means that these devices can run indoors or outdoors, in the dark, the sun, the rain in fact in any weather at any time of the night or day and in any location. Now that's versatile. Even better is the fact that, because they use magnets as their power source, there are no dangerous flammable fuels to worry about or noxious emissions to get rid of. In fact they are quiet, completely safe, non-pollution and extremely reliable.

This kind of technology won't stay a secret for very long though, and its only a matter of time before the big utility companies muscle in on the act and start exploiting it to their own advantage. But you still have a unique opportunity to take advantage of the fact that its quick and easy to build your very own magnetic power generator that can enable you to become self sufficient in electricity for your home.
