Acoustic Guitar Blues Lessons and easy to learn acoustic blues guitar tab, chords and riffs are popular with rock, blues, country and bluegrass guitar music lovers on the Internet.

Standard blues music on acoustic instruments like the guitar, has become a like music revival with blues acoustic guitar players because of British Blues guitarist like Eric Clapton and others in the 60's. Then in the mid 1980's Stevie Ray Vaughan Lead Blues Guitarist To a New acoustic level when he played his 12 string guild acoustic guitar on MTV, with songs like Rude Mood.

Other great blues guitarist who play electric blues have helped the acoustic blues guitar movement like, B.B. King, Muddy Waters, T-Bone Walker, Eric Johnson, John Mayer, and the newest blues guitarist to electrify audiences his name is GW Williams.

GW Williams plays amazing acoustic guitar music and songs on his new album release - , "ACOUSTIC BLUES, ELECTRIC ROCK, ACOUSTIC JAZZ".

His guitar landmark acoustic blues guitar song is called - "Acoustic Guitar Rock N Roll Blast Off ". This song is so amazing it's been called a new Blues Style on acoustic guitar by critically acclaimed music writers. Never before has an acoustic guitar player, play an acoustic guitar using GW Williams new creative blues music style. This is sure to revolutionize acoustic blues guitar playing styles.

With the Internet full of blues guitarist learning guitar online and studying about blues guitar chord structures, blues riffs, scales, rock leads, jazz licks, music notation, tab, flatpicking, fingerstyle picking, arpeggios, rhythms and more, it sure seem like no one could be creative and inventive on blues guitar to take acoustic blues guitar to a higher level.

But GW Williams creative new style has rock the acoustic blues guitar world.

Also his songs, - Electric Rock Guitarist - and - Spanish Guitar Acoustical Jazz - are highly searched music on the Internet. Other Songs like - Acoustic Guitar Blues - and - Rock N Country Blues Guitar - are all guitar and blues greats written and played by guitarist GW Williams.

Is GW Williams the future of the blues? Time will tell.

It's amazing to see acoustic guitar blues so popular even after 100 years of acoustic guitar blues history in the United States.

But the real amazing thing is blues guitar can be found in all style of music rock/blues music, Country/Blues Guitar, Jazz/Blues and even Bluegrass/Blues and deep swamp gator blues, New Orleans blues, blues slide guitar and where ever music is played on nearly every style of guitar playing you can hear the blues. Heck I even heard the blues played on an acoustic classical guitar by a classical guitar artist.

No longer is the old standard 12 bar blues with the old-time famous Blues Turn Around, considered the norm in the blues, because of Eric Clapton and Stevie Ray Vaughan.

Today the blues is more than just a 12 bar guitar vamp styleAnd since the 60's the blues has changed because of Eric Clapton, Jimi Hendrix and Stevie Ray Vaughan in the mid 80's .

Each of these great blues guitar artist have produced great albums and performed live guitar concert playing the blues.

Look at world class guitarist Stevie Ray Vaughan, he was consider a great blues guitarist, but his music was really more of a Heavy Metal sound mixed with Country Music and a Slight amount of Blues. Still years after his passing away his music lives on.

Because of Stevie Ray Vaughan the blues will never be the same, he changed the shape of the blues with his creative blues guitar style, in what today we accept as the norm in blues guitar music .

Also look at electric blues guitar great John Mayer, his style reflects Stevie Ray Vaughan style and the playing of Jimi Hendrix. But John Mayer has yet to play on acoustic guitar what he can accomplish on electric guitar. When John finally plays acoustic pure and sweet like on electric I think his rankings on guitar will rise faster, and I can't wait to hear John flat out pick and acoustic guitar without sound effects of any kind.

The pure beauty of listening to an acoustic blues guitar played by a great blues guitar artist, is like listening to a great symphony orchestra. The blues is a masterpiece work of art from the heart and soul on guitar. The blues guitar sings to us, the blues lives and breathes, it's alive.

Over the years we've come to love our great blues guitar players like Eric Clapton, Stevie Ray Vaughan, or even new guitar sensation GW Williams, because they not only excite us on electric guitar, but they can touch our hearts on an acoustic guitar and not hide behind a wall of electric sound effects. These great guitarist can play the life out of an acoustic blues guitar.

In closing to me - The blues acoustic guitar is an instrument that reaches out and touches our hearts more than any electric guitar can ever do.

The acoustic blues guitar is without doubt, the real deal, with no sound effects, it's sweet, it's sad, it moves us, and blesses our souls, and inspires greatness.

Thanks Sara
