Mike Roussell is Biochemistry graduate with extraordinarily high grades and is now pursuing a doctorate degree in nutrition & cardiovascular diseases at Pennsylvania State University. He is also a prominent writer at various bodybuilding and nutrition related websites and blogs.

This book is divided into two sections exercise and nutrition. But the difference between this system and the rest of the products is the stress on timing of food intake. The diet is based on a low calorie and high fiber diet which uses the food's thermic effect on body most effectively. This program is based on strategic training like metabolic resistance training, high intensity interval aerobic training, high intensity interval aerobic training etc. which help the body to only lose fat but not muscle.
