

Tax Refund Schedule and Calculator for 2010

The filing date of the income tax return form will determine the expected refund schedule date for the taxpayer. Electronic filing and direct deposit speed up the process of the tax refund.

Feb. 1, 2010 - PRLog -- The tax refund schedule is based upon the filing date of the income tax return form of the taxpayer. Once the tax return is accepted by the IRS, the taxpayer will have a rough outline as to when to expect the tax refund. For a 2009 federal tax form filed electronically, the expected direct deposit date would be approximately 8 to 14 days after the tax form was accepted by the IRS.
