

EVDense New Podcast Series: Renowned Experts Speak on Important Issues that Matter to You

By EVDense Corporation

Dated: Feb 09, 2010

EVDense records its first podcast with Dr. Gary Namie on workplace bullying and announces their upcoming podcasts with other experts covering important issues that make a difference in our lives.

Seattle, WA – EVDense Corporation (www.evdense.com), maker of the EVDense Digital Diary, launches a new podcast series on topics such as workplace bullying, sexual harassment, electronic evidence and more. EVDense identified leading experts in several areas and conducted live one on one interviews to provide you with expert information on how you can protect yourself by collecting and storing electronic information as evidence.

In its first interview, EVDense speaks with Dr. Gary Namie of the Workplace Bullying Institute about workplace bullying in the United States. “Workplace bullying is a problem of epidemic proportions, we just don’t talk about it because of the shame involved so we call it the silent epidemic,” says Dr. Namie. According to Dr. Namie, 71 million people have been affected by workplace bullying in the United States. Stay tuned for more live interviews, including Dr. Bernice Sandler, who many call the “grandmother of Title IX.” Dr. Sandler played an integral role in the passage of Title IX, which has dramatically changed the course of education for women in the United States, and she has been the front runner in the fight against sexual harassment. Also, Jim Yand, a seasoned attorney and leading expert in eDiscovery issues, will be sharing his views on your use of electronic evidence. Yand has presented seminars across the United States to businesses, attorneys and trial court judges on the complex issues of the use of electronically stored information as evidence.

EVDense will continue to provide you with valuable information to help you protect yourself with knowledge you need and a service you can use. EVDense is continuing to seek out experts to share their knowledge and expertise with its members. “We don’t just want to provide a valuable service to help our people, we also want to give them the best information on key issues,” says Roger Yee, Co-CEO of EVDense Corporation.
