Feb. 19, 2010 - PRLog -- Current online freight-brokerage software is loaded with lots of useful features and options that brokers use on daily basis in their work methods. It does not require installation of any sort and you can use it from anywhere at any time. Basically, you can generate quotes from Carriers ON THE GO. It is secure, professional and keeps you in complete control of your freight management. With proper usage you can achieve professional results and accomplish your work in a very short period of time.

With a simple registration to one of these online applications (some of them are completely free for Shippers and Brokers), you will gain access to post your loads, describe them in detail, search trucking companies, inquire rates and many more practical functions of your daily work routine, without spending all your time on the phone calling carriers over the phone. Once you decide the load-board of your choice, all you need to do is to subscribe, log-in and start posting your loads.

These applications run on all computer platforms with no problems. The programs and their functionality defers from each other, so before you decide to join any load-board out there, you should first read about the features and options they offer. Some of these programs are truly packed with stuff you need on daily basis. You can create list of your Preferred carriers and post private load-listings only for them, automatically document all correspondence between you and the carriers, keep track of your posted loads, create hundreds of listing templates (not to waste your time on repetitive load entries), received online quotes, create administrative reports, invoicing, etc.
