

Black Author Latrivia Nelson Writes About Russian Mob in Newest Urban Fiction & Scores a Hit

Latrivia S. Nelson, Author of Dmitry's Closet, writes a clever tale about a black orphaned virgin and a Russian mob boss that has people talking nationwide. Already a multicultural bestseller, this book is revolutionizing urban fiction.

Feb. 25, 2010 - PRLog -- She's known to many book clubs and readers as the Mistress of Taboo. Writing about untraditional, steamy interracial romance in the South, Latrivia Nelson has developed a niche of global readers that has exceeded her wildest dreams. Now she's exploring a new unconventional storyline between a Russian organized crime boss and a black virgin orphan in her latest book Dmitry's Closet. The combination promises to be electric, capturing the essence of modern-day international mafia figures and the passion of ageless romance in a page-turning hit.

"I'm always interested in exploring dynamics of relationships that are often looked over. When I watched David Cronenberg's Eastern Promises, I fell in love with the good versus bad affair in the story line. So, I decided after taking few organized crime classes to write a book that delved into the intimacy of loving someone who is considered perpetually bad," said Nelson.

Dmitry's Closet is scheduled to be available nationwide on major online bookstores later in the year. However, readers can order now directly from Nelson's web sites (www.dmitryscloset.com or www.latrivianelson.com) or on Amazon.com.

To date, Nelson has written the largest modern interracial romance novel in her genre with 616 pages for romance lovers. Ivy's Twisted Vine (2008) debuted in 2008 as her first published work and highlighted a triangle lover affair between a young black college queen, an aspiring black politician and an Italian SWAT police officer.

Dmitry's Closet is Nelson's second novel and is scaled down in size as a 360-page work of fiction. Based in Memphis, Tennessee and Moscow, Russia, the book follows the unexpected romance between two people thrown away by society who find each other through mutual need. However, besides obvious romance, there is a great deal of action and suspense.

For more information or interview requests, please contact Megan Woods at 901-435-6813 or mwoods@riverhousepublishingllc.com.

###

RiverHouse Publishing, LLC is a small publishing house based in Memphis, Tennessee. We are devoted to the global readers of paranormal romance, interracial romance, and urban fiction. Our goal is to provide readers of these genres high quality, unique and professional work from some of the nation's rising writing stars. We pride ourselves in presentation and devote ourselves to excellence.

--- End ---

Source	Megan Woods
City/Town	Memphis
State/Province	Tennessee
Zip	38002
Country	United States
Industry

Tags Books, Publishing, Entertainment
Urban Fiction, Latrivia S. Nelson, Dmitry S Closet, Russian Mob, Russian Mafian, Virgin Heroine, Interracial Romance
Link <https://prlog.org/10549199>

Scan this QR Code with your SmartPhone to-
* Read this news online
* Contact author
* Bookmark or share online