iConcur shakes up the Requirements Management tools market by releasing Axiom a free, enterprise-class, RM solution.

ATLANTA, GA – March 1st, 2010 -- iConcur Software™ today announced the availability of Axiom 2010, its free, enterprise-class Requirements Management (RM) solution. Starting today, users can download the client and server from <http://www.iconcur-software.com>.

"The release of Axiom 2010 marks a sea change in Application Lifecycle Management tools" said Brent Wilson, President and CEO of iConcur Software. "Companies can now choose an innovative and powerful Requirements Management solution without having to pay thousands of dollars per seat. And, although Axiom is free, we feel that many of its features are far better than most RM tools on the market today."

Axiom enables customers to better write and manage requirements and use cases with the following features:

- * An innovative and powerful rich-text editor that allows documents to be rapidly composed from collections of requirements.
- * A templating system that gives users the ability to create requirements, use cases, tasks, change requests, test cases or any other artifact that development teams might need.
- * Powerfull business intelligence reporting.
- * The ability to create traces and other custom links between requirements and other artifacts.
- * A Tree View feature that gives users the ability to go back in time to create a snapshot of a project at a previous date.
- * Custom views that give users the power to monitor changes to important artifacts.
- * A discussion feature that allows users to engage in threaded discussions.
- * An open and highly scalable J2EE architecture.
- * Integrations with LDAP complaint directory servers including ActiveDirectory, Novell and OpenDS.
