Montana State University's Extended University offers an Advanced Photoshop class beginning March 8 in downtown Bozeman

An Advanced Photoshop class runs March 8-11 in downtown Bozeman, Montana.

Offered by MSU Extended University, the course is for students who already use Photoshop and want to take their skills to the next level. Topics covered include:

- color fills, gradients, patterns and overlays
- layer masks, grayscale masks and clipping masks
- creating and editing paths; converting type to paths
- creative effects including Vanishing Point feature and Smart Filters
- creating layer comps
- preparing images for use in video production
- and more

The course takes place at MSU Extended University's Downtown Education Center (20 E. Olive). Four consecutive evenings, Monday through Thursday, 5:30pm to 8:30p. The price is $124 and both Continuing Education Units (CEUs) or OPI units (for teachers) are available.

Also -- students in this course are eligible for student pricing on Adobe software at the MSU Bookstore--a significant savings!

The instructor is Ben Pierce, who teaches several other Photoshop courses for Extended University. Ben is a professional photographer, designer and editor whose work appears regularly in national and regional publications. He operates Ben Pierce Photography and is the Outdoors Editor at the Bozeman Daily Chronicle. Ben's photographs span a broad array of subject matter from landscapes and portraiture to panoramic imaging. Ben works with Adobe Photoshop on a daily basis to produce eye-catching photographs, Web site designs and graphic elements for print and the Internet.
