May 10, 2010 - PRLog -- Kinnelon, NJ – Social Media Club North Jersey presents "I love you. I hate you. Customer Feedback in a Social World" to explore the dynamics of engaging with customers via social media and social networks on 5/25/10 at Houlihan's in Secaucus, NJ, from 8am to 10am

"So many businesses are afraid to enter the conversation via social media marketing tools because they fear negative comments so they miss the opportunity to increase their digital brand visibility and connect with potential customers," says Christine B. Whittemore, organizer of the event and chief simplifier of Simple Marketing Now LLC. "This session will explore the positives and negatives associated with engaging in social media marketing, and outline best practices so businesses can make the most of customer feedback and manage their online social reputation for the better."

Whittemore will lead the discussion, which will feature perspective from her client, Devon Valenti, marketing manager North America, ALK Technologies. Valenti is responsible for marketing and promotion of CoPilot Live consumer and business navigation solutions. She has extensive experience across the marketing spectrum—from interactive and online to creative writing—and manages the social media presence for the brand—a smart phone and iPad based GPS application.

Whittemore has been immersed in social media since 2006 – personally, for a brand and for her business.

She is the author of Flooring The Consumer – a highly acclaimed weblog about the customer retail experience and marketing to women and an AdAge Power 150 Marketing Blog. She also writes the Simple Marketing Blog, a Junta42 Top 42 Content Marketing Blog.
