Eken M003 Apad Tablet PC a.k.a. China iPad, or the Second Generation aPad iRobot is a lot cheaper than the iPad and runs Droid - Ebook 8 inch Google Android ebooker reader equipped with WIFI, SD card slot, microphone and stereo speaker for skype out.

May 19, 2010 - PRLog -- If you want to be nice, you could call Eken's new M003 tablet "iPad inspired." If you wanted to be truthful you could call it a Shenzhen clone of an iPad — a highly reflective one at that.

This is Eken's second Android tablet. The first is the M001 7-inch Android tablet which was first shown under the name Haleron iLet Mini HAL tablet last month. Unlike the unique look of the M001, Eken's M003 forgoes all that and targets a familiar design - even down to its near square shape and iconic menu button. The M003 is slightly smaller than Apple's iPad with a screen of 8-inches. It uses an VIA ARM 600MHz processor (or Prizm platform) and runs Android 1.6. Judging by the video it clearly has a resistive touchscreen, SIM slot for possible 3G, USB and SD card slot.

However, for the quoted price of $237U.S. per unit, wholesale discounts available, it might not matter that it's a poor-man's iPad clone. In this economy, there are a lot of poor men.
