All you Readers out there who love this old megalopolis Calcutta or is connected to Calcutta in someway or the other or is curious to know what it is to live in Calcutta may kindly get hold of the novel 'Ideospheres of Pain' by June Nandy from any of the outlets of Oxford Book Stores (Pan-India Book Store chain, kindly visit their official site) and from the official sites of Amazon.com, A1Books, Cyberwit.net. It'll be available from other book-stores chain too in due course at a later date.

But of course, all the Indian cities or any big cities of the world are same in some way or the other in its essence: the crowd, the fast pace, the conforming hands, the unaddressed foot-soldiers, the compassion of the people underneath its ruthless crust and the brave-hearts who dare to alter system with their uniqueness by their thoughts and actions.

Do pass the word around.

Thank you for the copies you buy. It means a lot to me.

Kindly RSVP to Rammyanne at 9831110300, so that we know how many people would be coming exactly.

June.
