PHP is a server-side scripting language for creating dynamic Web pages. You create pages with PHP and HTML. When a visitor opens the page, the server processes the PHP commands and then sends the results to the visitor's browser, just as with ASP or ColdFusion. Unlike ASP or ColdFusion, however, PHP is Open Source and cross-platform. PHP runs on Windows NT and many Unix versions.

If you've ever researched the internet on how to design webpage's, you've probably heard of the html code known as PHP. This method can be very difficult to learn and understand alone, especially if you don't have some form of understanding of basic coding. But there is a simple solution

But there is still hope for those of us who have no background in this coding. Robert Plank has designed a fool proof system for comprehensive learning that provides users with steps and instructions where you can learn PHP, as easily as possible.

Simple PHP is written by Robert Plank, the brilliant young PHP coder who,through his hard work and determination, has become a PHP coder to contend with.

Besides writing tutorials on PHP, Robert is a working practical coder who has written the codes for a number of high profile web sites including:

• Lightning Track
• Redirect Pro
• Turbo Thanks
• Code Warden
• eZine Rocket
• Hypersplitter
• RotatorBlaze

• and countless others.

With Simple PHP he has done a remarkable job. It is informative yet simple to understand and implement. His sense of humour and personality shine through in his writing making this a fun read as well as an informative reference book.
