How can I make a dry cell HHO? This is the one question many are asking.

While the "HHO dry cell" remains the most popular hho device amongst many who are using HHO generators or even HHO electrolyzers. The term "dry cell" has many confused simply because they are wondering how using an electrolysis of water to make the HHO gas if the unit will run dry. Simply put this is because HHO dry cells use an electrolyte in the water. The same as any other type of HHO electrolyzer does. While the only real difference is the design and the properties of the HHO dry cell make it that much more efficient HHO generator.

To make a dry cell HHO is really very easy. You do this by taking the electricity from your cars battery and separate it into two gases Oxygen and Hydrogen. Which than makes what we now call HHO gas or Hydroxy fuel. HHO gas burns effectively and supplies more then enough energy. With the atomic power of hydrogen yet maintaining the stability of water. These are the reasons why HHO is very safe as well as very effective for power.
