Aug. 16, 2010 - PRLog -- On the Rise: Hello! High Water Serves as the Latest Pop Rock Band

BELLEVUE, Wash. (August 16, 2010)—A fresh wave of music is headed for national recognition in the form of Hello! High Water. The band, based in Seattle, consists of lead vocalist/guitarist Daniel Phillips, backup vocalist /keyboardist Jeff Hill, guitarist Cody Whistler, bassist Zo Jackson, and drummer Rudy Simone.

With hints of synthesizers, piano, and humorous antics, Hello! High Water brings a new flavor to the genre of pop rock. Their debut EP, entitled “Six to Midnight,” has six new songs that do not disappoint. Their first single, “Something to Believe,” is currently available on iTunes and streaming on the band’s MySpace. Their second single, “Dress Up,” is also playable on their MySpace.

Each song on their EP has an innovative sound that is different from the next. From the powerful instrumentals in “Last Night” to the melodic harmonies in “When It’s Gone,” featuring Eric Bowley from The Scene Aesthetic, the entire album is an enticing listen from start to finish. Produced by Aaron Bowley Studios, the EP is one that can be listened to time and time again.

Hello! High Water will be playing at El Corazon on September 14 with Keeping Secrets, Heir to the Throne, The Ellis Armor, and The Lookout.
