

The Princess Journal by Dr. Jill A. Jones.

Dr. Jones shared her royal encounter experience with all women. She felt she had spent too many years feeling like she had to live the life she was born into; a life of shame and sadness.

Aug. 25, 2010 - PRLog -- Women all over the world are hurting. They are buying Satan's lies that they are not skinny, pretty, smart, or capable. The way women dress and behave often demonstrates their lack of respect for themselves. Yet, when women of God realize that they are royalty, they will have a newfound desire to present themselves as living and holy testimonies for their Heavenly Father.

Women want to be loved by their earthly fathers; the realization that their Heavenly Father loves them and has a plan for them will invigorate them to pursue a life change: a life that pursues their Father, not earthly men or material items.

This devotional was written using personal vignettes and literacy strategies that should engage the reader and assist women in learning how to interact with God's Holy Word. She who does the most work does the most learning. As a result, this devotion was written to spur women to investigate God's Word while reflecting on their personal experiences.

This devotional is completely 'girly' and should make women feel like their Father is sitting next to them talking to them about life's important details.

###

Jill was a researcher, author, and veteran conference presenter. She authored many articles and an instructor's manual, Learning to Teach Language Arts a Field-Based Setting and a series of books entitled, Learning to Read God's Way. These books interweave God's scripture with sound literacy practices that will assist teachers, parents, and students to learn to read, write, speak, and listen. Dr. Jones traveled for academic conferences to teach the importance of literacy practices.

Dr. Jones was killed in a tragic car accident on August 8, 2010. She lost her life along with the life of her 16 year old son, Niko. She is survived by her husband Ray of 19 years and another son, Ray, Jr.

Dr. Jones loved God with all her heart, mind, and soul and wished to share her royal status with her sisters around the globe. This remarkable book not only reveals Dr. Jones' love for God, but her love for all women of all ages to gain the status of princess.
