Like most people, I started Spanish with the usual ghastly grammar methods that make learning so dull and boring. Worst of all... As hard as I tried with those methods, I just couldn't communicate with Spanish speakers.

Luckily, I discovered that by making just a few simple and easy changes in my approach, I could effectively speak Spanish usable in the real-world.

You too can enjoy the same success with Spanish. Instead of stumbling trying to find the right words, the Spanish just flows from your mouth almost automatically.

Finally enjoy Spanish communication in most common real-world situations.

After all....

Being Able To Use Spanish In The Real-World Is What Learning Spanish Is All About.

Imagine traveling through a Spanish speaking country or community. You chat with the locals and they easily understand you. You walk up to complete strangers without feeling nervous. You confidently say what you want to say in Spanish.

It's a lot of fun.

It changes the way you travel and the way you relate to people...

In a short time you can communicate in Spanish, order meals, reserve hotels, ask questions, and get your point across as well as understanding what they say back to you.

Why not get away from the over priced tourist traps? Instead enjoy exploring markets, meeting the locals, and going where they go.

If this kind of human interaction is why you want learn Spanish

I have to caution you... Most Spanish programs actually stop you from ever getting to speak in the real-world.

Warning: If You Want To Use Your Spanish In The Real-World You Must Avoid These Common

Mistakes.

One of the biggest mistakes people make is learning fake language you'll never use. For example;

“The tables are very clean but the waiter is dirty.”

Or this,

“The quick jellyfish is quiet.”

Believe it or not those examples are from Spanish textbooks.

Worse Than Fake Language Are The Joyless, Passionless, Long-Winded Grammar Explanations That Just Leave You Confused.

How can you learn if you are confused? Yet, confusion is common in language classes.

Who wouldn't feel confused by this example taken directly from another Spanish Course?

“When the relative clause introduces a nonrestrictive clause (information non essential to the overall meaning of the sentence), you can use el cual.”

Is knowing how to handle a “nonrestrictive clause”, or even knowing what the heck it means, really going to help you communicate with friends.

Speaking real-world Spanish is so much more enjoyable.

Let me show you the easiest way to learn real-world Spanish you can use the same day.

How To Get A Flying Start And Communicate In Real-World Spanish In The Shortest Time Possible

Forget the classroom and academic world theory. If you want to make real-world contact with Spanish speakers it makes much more sense to start with the easiest and fastest Spanish you can use right away.

The problem is most teachers, classes and courses overlook the best ways to start speaking Spanish quickly. Instead they insist on teaching you minor points of grammar that have little or no effect on your ability to communicate.

Simply put, Spanish you can actually use in the real-world is the best place to start.

As obvious as that last statement is, they rarely teach you real-world Spanish.

My shortcuts change your approach so you can start using Spanish immediately.

In fact, there is a buried treasure chest of Spanish vocabulary that is usually hidden from students, yet it is the best way to learn Spanish quickly.

Open this treasure chest and you can learn a way to use as many as 3013 Spanish words without any resistance because....

You already know them, you just don't know them well enough to use them...
