

Titanium-Jewelry Offers Palladium Wedding Bands

Leading online retailer of jewelry announces the addition of palladium rings for winter wedding season.

Nov. 22, 2010 - PRLog -- Modesto, CA -- Titanium-Jewelry.com, a premier online retailer of men's jewelry, tungsten rings, and men's wedding bands, is proud to offer a wide variety of palladium wedding bands for the winter wedding season. Not only do palladium wedding bands look similar to comparable platinum wedding bands, but also runs at roughly one-third of the price.

Palladium is a rare precious metal in the platinum family. It is a naturally white metal, much rarer than gold, and makes an excellent choice for wedding bands. Palladium is becoming a popular choice with couples who want a precious metal that is white, but don't want to pay the higher price for platinum.

"This is an exciting time for men's jewelry," says Ron Yates, founder of Titanium-Jewelry.com. "It used to be that when a man was in the market for a wedding band he was stuck with few choices. White metal, such as white gold and platinum, have been the popular color for wedding bands over the last decade. But with the prices of gold and platinum going through the roof, palladium has become a great option for couples looking for wedding bands. Palladium is perfect for those who want the platinum look, but don't want to pay the crazy price for a platinum wedding band. We offer customers dozens of different palladium rings, in a variety of different styles and price ranges. This way you can have a great looking ring without breaking the bank."

Titanium-Jewelry.com has nearly four dozen palladium wedding bands in stock for varying tastes and price ranges. For those looking for something in the traditional realm, customers can get palladium rings which feature faceted, grooved, raised center or flat designs. For those looking for something a bit more complex, Titanium-Jewelry.com offers palladium rings mixed with red gold, or even inlaid with platinum and or brilliant diamonds.
