Jan. 12, 2011 - PRLog -- Over the last twenty years, attorney Christopher H. Cessna has handled thousands of DUI (driving under the influence), BUI (boating under the influence), DWAI (driving while ability impaired), DUID (driving under the influence of drugs) and drunk-driving related offenses. DUI and other cases of this nature are incredibly complex, far more than many other types of criminal cases because of the heavy emphasis on scientific evidence, either in the breath test or the chemical test. While many Denver DUI <http://www.cessnalaw.com/> attorneys know about some of the inaccuracy issues with these tests, Mr. Cessna stays up to date with all information regarding the tests by taking continuing education classes through the National College of DUI Defense.

Fighting charges for drug-related DUIs can be even more difficult because the charges usually follow an examination by a Certified Drug Recognition Expert-Emergency Medical Technician (DRE-EMT). These experts are well-trained in recognizing the physical manifestations of drug use. Mr. Cessna, who is a former police officer, is the only Denver DUI <http://www.cessnalaw.com/> lawyer who is also a certified DRE-EMT. With a host of other certifications and more than 2,000 hours of law enforcement training under his belt, he is the most qualified choice for your DUI defense.

From the thousands of dollars in fines, fees and probation costs to the criminal record to the license suspension and the high-risk insurance, he strives to ensure his clients do not have to face these repercussions. He is often able to obtain case dismissals and reduced charges for his clients before their case is taken to a jury trial, but he is also an exemplar of DUI defense in the courtroom.
