

Swedish Translation Services is expanding its service offer

A complete localization package for companies who want to communicate with the Swedish market

Dec. 10, 2013 - PRLog -- Swedish Translation Services, a 10 year old translation company, offering English-Swedish-English translation services is expanding and can now offer the complete localization package of translation, editing, proofreading and cultural adaptation to companies who want to reach the Swedish market and Swedish customers. These services are also available to other translation agencies in need of Swedish translation services.

Swedish Translation Services has offered translation services for over a decade now and this expansion of services is provided to ease the burden for buyers of linguistic services, with a one-stop service instead of having to contract several people doing the different tasks in a well performed translation project. Swedish Translation Services has earned the position as a preferred service provider for Swedish translations. As a small, boutique service provider we can provide the personal touch, customer service, attention and confidentiality you deserve. "Establishing close client relationships have been instrumental to our success," says Tess, owner of Swedish Translation Services, a native Swedish speaker and professional English into Swedish translator.

"In today's international market, localizing your message and content to the target market, both linguistically and culturally, is becoming increasingly important. Customers want to buy and read information about products and services in their native language," says Tess. She works closely with a team of trusted colleagues to provide a full localization service of your material, each task performed by experienced native professionals.

Swedish Translation Services specializes in localizing your business communication and technical documentation for the Swedish market. Before launching a full-time career as a translator over 10 years ago, she worked in the IT and marketing industries. Her educational qualifications include a Master of Arts in Business Communication and Public Relations and a Master of Science in Economics. She actively supports professional translation standards through her involvement with the Swedish Association of Professional Translators and the American Translators Association (ATA). She is a certified translator for the US State Language Department and a merit-selected grader for the English into Swedish certification program under ATA.
