

Book Launch for 'Feeling Felty'!

Want to make things, do something new and inject more creativity into your life? Then, 'Feeling Felty' is the book for you.

STOCKPORT, U.K. - Feb. 5, 2014 - PRLog -- Artist, author and teacher, Anne Glynis Davies, has self-published her first book entitled, Feeling Felty. It all began as an idea in a Blog post and gradually turned into a fully, illustrated guide to the wonderful art of felt-making.

Feeling Felty begins with the basic process of wet felt-making, in which raw wool is layered and then fulled to connect the fibres to form a closed fabric. The book then introduces the reader to designing patterns on felt, creating texture, producing lattice effects and felting in three-dimensions. The final chapters deal with blending different colours of fibres and step-by-step instructions of how to model felt into simple items.

Anyone can make felt, from the smallest child to an adult. All that is needed is a desire to play with colour, lots of imagination and a love of crafts. So why not follow Anne on her journey as she shares her ideas to help others get that felty feeling, too!
