New National Fraternity Omega Gamma Pi Fraternity, Inc. Joins Greek System

Omega Gamma Pi Fraternity, Inc., a new national fraternity developed at the University of Michigan, is on its way to being fully established at the University and has taken the steps towards expansion in other universities nationwide.

May 16, 2007 - PRLog -- Ann Arbor - May 16, 2007 - Omega Gamma Pi Fraternity, Inc., is a new national social fraternity developed by a group of freshman and sophomores at the University of Michigan in Ann Arbor just a few months ago. At the university, many students participate in the Greek system, joining social, honor, professional, and service fraternities and sororities. Omega Gamma Pi, or as the brothers like to call themselves, OGP, has recently been inducted into the Multicultural Greek Council at the University of Michigan, making it the eleventh organization on the council. The University on a whole has close to 60 chapters among four Greek councils.

The National Founding Father line of the new Fraternity consist of Nikhil Chaudhri, Abhinav Chordia, Zoheb Hajiyani, Anupam Kathpalia, Riyaz Maredia, Fayaz Momin, Ram Narayan, Niranjan Ramadas, Ashwin Ramnath, Rahil Roopani, Atishay Sinha, and Zoha Mohammed. Recently achieving incorporated status, the organization is on the verge of having non-profit added to their credentials. Recently finalizing their logo, the organization is on the verge of becoming distinguished in Ann Arbor and eventually expanding across the east and west coast of the United States. The Fraternity's marketing campaign successfully started on Friday, March 30th, 2007, when the organization threw their launch party entitled “Genesis” at a local club in Ann Arbor. With powerful marketing skills and an enthusiastic crowd at the party, the Fraternity became the topic of discussion among various students.

Their website http://www.omegagammapi.com/ is expected to launch within the next few weeks but for a sneak peak check out http://www.omegagammapi.com/beta, including information about the brothers and their principles. “We strive on four main ideas; the promotion of brotherhood, the enhancement of education, service to the community, and pride in our principles and members,” says National Public Relations Chair Anupam Kathpalia. “We aren't your typical beerfest and kegstand fraternity, we brothers work together on community service projects, helping each other through life's complexities, having fun, and of course other rituals we promise to keep secret. Not only do we do a variety of things, we are a group of diverse individuals in terms of beliefs, friends, and skills, and that's what makes us unique and separates us from other organizations.” Despite the brothers parting to all parts of the world for the summer, the talented and promising group successfully manages to prepare for an exciting and enthusiastic year for the Fraternity. For contact information check the organization's website or the Greek Life page on the University's site.
