

Log Home Directory Unveils New Features, Design, and Complementary Log and Timber Home Resources

Log Cabin Directory reinvents itself with a dramatic new appearance, improvements in navigation, site-spanning uniformity and launches new resources geared to helping log and timber frame home buyers and owners find solutions.

Nov. 28, 2007 - PRLog -- KALISPELL, MT -- Log Cabin Directory launches dynamic new web resources catering to the log home and timber frame industry. Recognized for its comprehensive listing of log home companies, industry news and information, the new websites provide visitors with significantly improved navigation, new features and additional research and learning opportunities.

Among the new learning resources is LogHomeology.com, a glossary-style web counterpart that offers explanations of the unique terms, history and science behind log and timber frame homes. In addition, a new video directory dubbed 'Log TV', Log-Videos.com hopes to capitalize on the popularity of online videos and focuses exclusively on log homes and closely aligned topics.

The Log Cabin Directory also announces an extensive site-wide overhaul with eye-catching images and significant additions to their store of log home information. With the changes to the appearance, organization of the site and navigation, information located on the original site is easier to find. Some of the major enhancements to the website include:

Improved Navigation - Making it easier for visitors to find what they are looking for and includes cross-site integration between their other complimentary resource websites.

Look and Feel - Enhanced design, pleasing colors and a new page layout provides an improved user experience and quicker access to information.

New Features - New features on the website include the addition of popular topics of interest such as green building, DIY projects and industry trade show schedules. Intuitive drop-down menus provide one-click access to all vital areas of the website, a sitemap, and company information. The company plans to roll-out these updates across their other interrelated web properties during Q1, 2008.
