Cleaning your HVAC system air ducts in Atlanta, Ga can save money on your utility bills and make your air in your home cleaner and healthier to breathe.

Dec. 31, 2008 - PRLog -- Cleaning your HVAC system air ducts in Atlanta, Ga can save money on your utility bills and make your air in your home cleaner and healthier to breathe.

A dirty HVAC air duct system can cause your utility bills to skyrocket. Dirty coils are inefficient and dirty blowers cause the blower motor to have to work harder. Dirty air ducts can restrict air flow and increase air pressures inside the HVAC system. All of these factors cause your HVAC system to consume more electricity. A thorough air duct cleaning can not only improve the indoor air quality in your home or office but it can also lower you utility bills if it is done correctly. A partial cleaning of the HVAC air duct system will not improve the efficiency of the system, the whole HVAC system including the air ducts and the HVAC unit must be cleaned properly to get the best results.

Choosing an air duct cleaning company in Atlanta can be very confusing. The best way to ensure you are hiring a good air duct cleaning company is to do your homework. Before you hire an Atlanta air duct cleaning company you should first check out their profile on the BBB website BBB.org. Second make sure that they are licensed by the state of Georgia, all duct cleaning companies must have an HVAC mechanical license to do work in Georgia, ask to see a copy of their license before any work is started, this license should have the state of Georgia seal on it and a license number. Any company that tells you that a license is not required is lying to you, these requirements can be found on the EPA.gov and NADCA.com websites. Third, hiring an air duct cleaning company that is a member of NADCA will help ensure that you are getting professional air duct cleaning company due to the fact that NADCA requires their members go through a certification process that ensures the member has current knowledge of the proper air duct cleaning procedures and that they carry the proper insurance and have the proper state license. Lastly, choosing an air duct cleaning company that specializes in only cleaning air ducts is usually a good choice, air duct cleaning is usually an afterthought for companies that specialize in carpet cleaning and the air duct cleaning service they provide is most certainly second rate, by the way these companies are definitely not state licensed.

In conclusion, be careful when picking an air duct cleaning company in Atlanta and never let price dictate your decision when hiring an Air duct cleaning company in the Atlanta area. Do your research before hiring an air duct cleaning company, loads of information for consumers can be found on the EPA.gov website, once on the site type in air duct cleaning in their search box, this will bring you to several articles written by the EPA for consumers to help them make an informed decision when hiring an air duct cleaner in Atlanta. Visit our air duct cleaning website WWW.HVACCLEANING.COM for more information on air duct cleaning and links to the air duct cleaning information sites mentioned above.
