

Limited Medical & Voluntary Benefits Conference Announces Speakers and Sponsors

The 1st Limited Medical & Voluntary Benefits Conference has announced some of its key speakers and key sponsors. The conference will feature key speakers from CIGNA, Aetna, McDonalds, Black and Decker, and other large groups and associations.

July 20, 2009 - PRLog -- The 1st Limited Medical & Voluntary Benefits Conference, <http://www.voluntarybenefitsconference.com> has announced some of its key speakers and key sponsors. The conference takes place October 25th and 26th, 2009 in Los Angeles, California and will feature up to 400 healthcare executives, over 20 sponsors, and over 50 expert speakers. The conference will feature key speakers from CIGNA, Aetna, McDonalds, Black and Decker, and some of the largest associations in the country.

“This is the first limited medical and voluntary benefits conference aimed at mid-size and large employers, associations and affinity groups and large consulting firms and agencies,” said Jessica Leopold, Senior Meeting Manager for the conference. Many mid-size and large employers are starting to look at implementing voluntary benefits and simply have not done this yet. Now that the economy is putting pressure on them, they are starting to look at ways to offer voluntary benefits to employees,” said Ms. Leopold.

The conference, www.voluntarybenefitsconference.com will also feature pre-scheduled networking meetings. “We are implementing software so attendees can pre-schedule up to 50 meetings during the conference, which means attendees can get the significant benefit of maximizing their time. This will be one of the only US healthcare conferences and the only voluntary benefits conference that facilitates networking meetings,” Jessica Leopold stated.

The Voluntary Benefits & Limited Medical Conference is the official conference of Worksite Magazine and Voluntary Benefits Magazine. www.voluntarybenefitsmagazine.com , www.worksitemagazine.com
