Special Guest: Philadelphia Photographer Martin Regusters becomes "Citizen Diplomat" Prize-winning photographer selected to represent Philadelphia.

For nearly 30 years Martin Regusters, Leaping Lion Photography, has been one of the city's most prolific photographers. Training his lens on neighborhoods, government, corporate leaders, civic protests and social gatherings, he has chronicled a slice of Philadelphia life that cuts across age, gender and ethnic background. Martin's legacy and passion of capturing distinctive photographs have been featured in dozens of local and national newspapers, magazines, brochures, and printed literature of every description. Those lucky enough to book him for a "shoot" have discovered a practiced professionalism and easy humor that contribute to the success of any project.

That combination of professionalism and personality make Regusters a perfect pick for his next assignment as "Citizen Diplomat" in Poland. Regusters traveled to Torun, Poland to participate in "Torun in the Twin Lens," a "diplomatic mission" that brought together nine photographers from across the globe for a weeklong learning, photographing and networking opportunity.

Sponsored by the International Visitors Council of Philadelphia (IVC), an international relations organization, Regusters represented Philadelphia as a Citizen Diplomat. In that capacity he shared Philadelphia's cultural diversity and his own photographic skill as part of the city's Sister Cities program.
