The first few flakes of snow were flying this past weekend. Winter officially starts on December 21, but it appears as though it has already arrived. This got us thinking about winter weather preparedness and the countless things that can happen due to winter weather events.

Heavy snow, ice storms and heavy winds are capable of knocking the power out at any time. As hard as Jersey Central Power & Light works to keep everything working, in a major outage it could be several hours or days before the power is restored. We're here to help.
