Korto Momolu is one of the finalists of the 5th season of Bravo TV's hit show Project Runway. Her clothes are now featured at Dillard's and Korto had her own show at the Mercedes-Benz fashion Week in NYC. She has become a new face of fashion not only in the US but internationally. Right after our fashion show at Union Trust she is flying to South Africa to attend their national fashion week.

Stewart Bradley is known for his powerful tackles as an Eagles Linebacker, but he is also known for his interest in fashion. The linebacker interned at Elle Magazine, which is one of fashion's leading publications. Stewart has made a point to put time and effort into charity and is dedicated to make the most out of his media appeal to benefit organizations such as Susan G. Komen.

Union Trust is one of the most stunning restaurants in the Philadelphia, Center City area. With its unique interior design it is the perfect venue for the Korto Momolu fashion show. The exquisite food from Chef Quincy Logan, who is featured in Food Network's Chefs vs. City, makes the experience complete.
