Nov. 5, 2010 - PRLog -- Research has shown that about 50% of homeowners who initiate a roof replacement or other major home repair project end up less than fully satisfied with the result. Poor customer service or communication, sloppy or unprofessional workmanship, and surprise cost overruns are frequent complaints about roofing contractors and other home service providers. It is important to locate a professional that is fully qualified and insured for any home improvement project.

A roof is your home's topmost protective layer against the elements, but it can also be a design statement. Whether your roof needs to be repaired, replaced, or your looking to have a new roof installed, design, grade of materials, professional roofers, and budget all play a major role. As a homeowner or business owner in Albany, NY it is imperative that you locate a roofing contractor that is not only licensed and insured, but has the proper credentials and affiliates.

For any home or business, the integrity and state of repair of the roof is actually something that should be taken incredibly seriously. Quiet often, when left unattended or left without repair and maintenance, there are truly countless other issues that will affect the home or business as a result of the roofing issues.
