

Rockwerx named Top Builder of Traditional Climbing Gyms

BARRE, Mass. - Jan. 3, 2014 - PRLog -- Rockwerx is a major climbing wall manufacturer with offices in central Massachusetts. The Climbing Business Journal or CBJ just published its Gyms and Trends of 2013 in its December 30, 2013 issue. CBJ named Rockwerx this year's top builder of new traditional rock climbing gyms.

With all this new construction it's interesting to see which wall builders might also be growing their businesses in America. Rockwerx was this year's top builder of new traditional gyms, while owner built walls continue to make up the largest share of new bouldering gyms. As bouldering and traditional gyms continue to get bigger, we expect the proportion of owner built walls to fall.

From Design and Engineering, pre-fabrication in our massive shop located in central Massachusetts, and finally, on-site Installation, Rockwerx guides you through every single step of the build, leaving no questions unanswered and no detail overlooked. In a world of construction delays, we also pride ourselves on working within your facility timeline, for on-time delivery, construction, and completion.

After we construct the wall of your dreams, we'll stick around to be sure that you are completely comfortable and satisfied with your new wall. Beyond our state-of-the-art construction, we will also help prepare you to confidently and efficiently run your climbing wall, through exceptional staff and operational trainings and comprehensive route setting packages. Even after we pack up our gear and head home, Rockwerx promises to be a helpful and knowledgeable resource at any time, for any reason.
