

National Geographic Society Recruits Public Speaker Rosann Santos For First National Geographic Explorers Festival

In an effort to further the understanding of our planet and empower the global community to generate solutions for a healthier and more sustainable future, bilingual public speaker Rosann Santos has been recruited by NatGeo Society for their first National Geographic Explorers Festival in Mexico City.

NEW YORK - March 28, 2018 - PRLog -- Rosann Santos is a bilingual Spanish/English keynote speaker, and Gallup Strengths Coach from New York City committed to help both young professionals and seasoned experts excel in their education and careers.

Ms. Santos was recently recruited by the National Geographic Society for her bilingualism and speaking expertise in helping scientists participating in the Sciencetelling™ Bootcamp to communicate their ideas more effectively.

National Geographic Society issued the statement, "We believe in the power of science, exploration, education, and storytelling - to change the world. Our Sciencetelling™ Bootcamp helps our explorers and grantees learn how to communicate their important scientific discoveries in ways that build global geographic knowledge and empower us all to generate solutions for a healthier future."

Ms. Santos posted a video about her experience saying, "Bilingualism is important in marketing yourself. We as Latinos are at a huge advantage in opportunities which require bilingual skills. I was hired specifically for my expertise in coaching and speaking in both English and Spanish and am tremendously thankful to the National Geographic Society for this exciting opportunity."

About The Festival:

For the first time, the National Geographic Explorers Festival was hosted in Mexico. As part of the festival, local Explorers and colleagues from National Geographic Partners™ and Fox Networks Group in Mexico

City gathered for an Explorers Symposium featuring 28 National Geographic Explorers from across Latin America. During the program, the Explorers shared their work through a series of short presentations. Rosann Santos coached the scientists on how to communicate more effectively in their native language for their presentations.
